Attends Tech Workshop For Teachers

BLACKSBURG - Part of Virginia education's move toward quality education for everyone is a need for teachers to know if the students are actually learning what the teachers are teaching.

A method to measure what the students are learning is one of the uses of behavioral objectives. Two workshops conducted this summer at Virginia Tech gave 86 high school teachers the opportunity to learn more about them.

Behavioral objectives are precise statements of what the student is to accomplish in terms that can be measured. For instance, the statement "the student will be able to type 60 words a minute with no errors," is a behavioral objective.

The workshops are conducted as part of the Vocational Education Evaluation Project. The project, jointly funded by the State Department of Education's division of vocational education and Virginia Tech's College of Education, is a five-year project to develop a method of evaluating vocational education programs. It is directed by J. Dale Oliver, associate professor of education at Virginia Tech.

Richard K. Hill, assistant professor of education, conducts the workshops. Working with him are graduate students Mrs. June Schmidt, Blacksburg; Mrs. Helen Simmons, Christiansburg; William Moore and Ned Swartz, both of Richmond. The sessions were for teachers in agriculture, business, distributive, home economics and trade and industrial education.

Participating in the workshops from Appomattox County was Barry F. Sauls, of Appomattox.

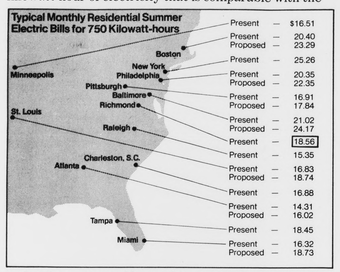
The Chairman of Vepco reports on a period of adjustment.

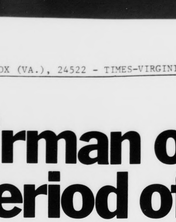
No one is more concerned about the cost of your electric service than those of us at Virginia Electric and Power Company. And after many years of rate reductions it has been very difficult for us to have to ask for recent rate increases.

The new rates granted by the State Corporation Commission have been reviewed and approved by the Federal Price Commission. Even at the new rate, our residential customers will still enjoy an average cost per kilowatt-hour of electricity that is comparable with the national average, and lower than our own average cost back in 1963. How many other items in your budget can you still buy at 1963 prices?



The Fuel Adjustment Clause

One new aspect of the approved rate structure is the inclusion of a fuel adjustment clause. In 1970 and 1971, the skyrocketing cost of the coal and oil that we burn in our generating plants completely wiped out our 1970 rate increase, the first increase we had asked for in 16 years.



Fossil fuels—coal and oil—account for more than 50% of electric operating expenses. The fuel adjustment clause will allow us to adjust your bill automatically, to reflect any changes in fossil fuel costs—decreases as well as increases.

Agnes

A second event affecting our recent operations was, of course, Hurricane Agnes. Flood damage to Vepcc plants and equipment is estimated at approximately $3.5 million. But while this has reduced our reserve capacity below what we would like it to be, we expect to be able to meet your peak summertime demands barring any unforeseen circumstances. We have already met peak loads this summer which were 18% greater than last summer's peak.

A special word of thanks should go to our Vepco employees who worked day and night—both to prevent the flood from completely disrupting service, and to help us resume normal operations so quickly.

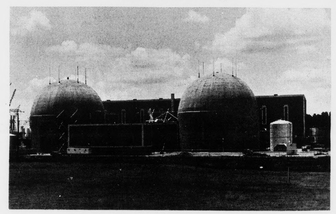
Where Do We Go From Here

But now that the flood is over, now that our new rates have been established, what next? Where do we go from here—and how will what we do affect you?

Our construction program will move forward as rapidly as possible. Our first nuclear unit at Surry Power Station has already provided you with clean nuclear energy. The second unit at Surry is scheduled for operation early next year. Construction is proceeding at our second nuclear station at North Anna in Louisa County to meet anticipated needs in 1974. Additional fossil fuel generating units are being built at our Mt. Storm and Possum Point stations. Yorktown station is being expanded and all units at that plant will be converted from coal to oil. A pumped storage hydroelectric generating facility in Bath County is in the preliminary stages.

When the last of these is completed in 1979, the power stations alone will have cost $2.12 billion. That's over $1 million per day invested to serve you and the economy of this area. In addition, transmission lines must be built to get this power to you, and substations and distribution facilities must be constructed.

Responsible Progress, Mutual Understanding



Because we consider customer communication so important, we also plan to continue the series of energy conservation messages we began in December, 1970, with suggestions to help you save money on your electric bill; information about what we're doing to meet your needs for electric power; and details on how our plans fit in with the environment.

To meet the summertime demands of air conditioning, we must have adequate generating capacity—but much of this capacity remains idle or operates at low levels during the winter months. Because these year-round facilities are used primarily to meet summertime demands, our summer rates to above-average residential users are higher than in the winter. Also, we hope that by increasing the use of electric heat we will be able to use our facilities more efficiently for the benefit of all our customers.

We know how important protecting the environment is, and we're dedicated to a program of responsible progress through research. We're always looking for new and better ways of providing electric power, and as your needs dictate that we build more plants and install more transmission lines, we'll be making sure that the effects on the environment are minimized.

Our new Surry plant will be providing clean nuclear power, and our Chesterfield plant recently won first place in the National Sports Foundation competition to fight water pollution. To carry on this precedent, we'll be spending about $105 million on environmental protection for the period 1972-1975.

A Continuing Commitment

But above all, it is our intention to continue to provide the electricity you need for today's living as we have in the past—not only economically and dependably, but in a socially responsive manner.

SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTIST

Rufus B. McDannell, Pastor
Sabboth School Lesson - 8
August 13, 1972
Subject:"Right Day - Wrong Day"
Scripture Text; And he said unto them, The Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath." Mark 2:27.

When Christ lived among the Jews at his first advent, the Sabbath they were keeping corresponded to the day which the Romans called the day of Saturn or Saturday. Christ's example made it clear that this is the day to observe. He kept it and defended it against those who misused it. It is the Lord's day for man. The day blessed and sanctified or set apart as holy by Christ our Creator when He made the world.

The Gospel s contain no record of any disagreement between Jesus and the Pharisees concerning which day of the week is the right day to observe. He and His disciples observed the same seventh day of the week that the Jews did. The controversy between Him and His opponents were concerning the manner in which the Sabbath day should be kept. They were keeping the right day in the wrong way.

Elder Robert N. Edwards series of sermons on Christian Stewardship" closed Sabbath August 19th The meetings were attended Most mention we have two new members from Fairfax, Va., Mr. and Mrs. Bigelow, are now living in Appomattox. You will always find the "Latch String" on the outside at the "Little Friendly Church" in Appomattox. Come! Sabbath School 10:00 a. m, Worship Service 11:15 a. m.
